

Source units are reported separately. Bar lengths are normalized within source, not compared across calculations, structures and connectivities.